

Affordable St. Petersburg Waterfront Living

g

A retirement community for persons 45 years of age and older in northeast St. Petersburg, Americana Cove has a history dating back to 1961 when the first mobile or manufactured homes were erected on the site at 7201 North First street. Today some 758 lots are occupied or available, with some one fourth of them located on canals or small lakes that lead to Riviera Bay and then to Tampa Bay. The original homes were placed at an angle on the lots to avoid the 'bowling alley' look of many mobile home parks.

Activities and Services

A variety of organized and other recreational and social activities are available to residents. Americana Cove Association is the parent and coordinating group for the park.

The Shuffleboard Club competes regularly with other park groups, and The Par Seekers, a golf group, plays a full winter season at the Mainland's Golf Course in Pinellas Park and other locations. The two groups, as well as the Cue Club, end the season in March with a banquet and awards program in the clubhouse.

The Garden Club, the Old Timers Social Club, and many other smaller groups are active, and Vespers, the Sunday evening church service features a regular choir and visits by ministers from various denominations. A Crime Watch group is active in monitoring the safety of Americana Cove. A Hobby Shop, with shared power tools, is a popular feature. The Forecaster is a newsletter printed monthly which details activities and interesting information about the community. The ACA sponsors a holiday and a 'White Elephant' sale annually to assist the activity fund for many of the groups. The Old Timers Social Club collects aluminum and sells it to fund two (2) luncheons monthly.

A nine member Board of Directors comprised of certificate holders governs the association (MAROA). A president is elected by the Board annually.
